

There is Gold in frac sand

Fontaine can help you haul in your share ... and more

The versatile frac sand solution.

Haul frac sand containers, pipe, materials or equipment with ease...

Can your chassis do that?

How It Works

A frac sand container is filled with the maximum payload at a terminal or a rail-to-truck facility. Then a platform trailer with twist locks matched to the container size hauls the sand to a well pad where a forklift removes the container. The trailer hauls empty bins back to the facility to get another load. This is a tough application, and trailers that meet the task must be able to handle concentrated loads and resist fork lift damage.

Why Fontaine is the best solution

Fontaine answers the challenge with the strongest mainbeam design in the industry: the Fontaine XtremeBeam. Then we position the twist locks behind the siderail to help protect the mechanism from side impacts. The design and construction of Fontaine trailers makes them ideally suited for this punishing environment PLUS they handle typical dropdeck loads with ease to give you more trailer for your money.

Seeing is believing

See how the RASR siderail on the Infinity TX stands up to the competition. Scan this QR code or go fontainetrailer.com/frac to watch the video.

Fontaine twist locks are placed behind the siderail to help protect the mechanism. This stronger design also gives you full use of the siderail load securement system so you can handle conventional loads with ease.

Competitive twist locks are cut into the side rail and are exposed to side impact damage from fork lifts. This weaker design interrupts the stake pockets/load securement system and annoys drivers.

Fontaine twist lock frac sand haulers are available in two models

Infinity TX aluminum/steel combo frac sand hauler
Velocity TX all steel frac sand hauler
